

Quick sketch artists making charcoal portraits of tourists.

Place du Tertre, the open air studio of Montmartre.

MONTMARTRE

The serious artist keeps a certain detachment.

You may come to Montmartre after visiting a museum housing rows of masterpieces of the centuries past. Here in the Place du Tertre you are surrounded by living painters at work. You may just have paid homage to the Mona Lisa in the awesome splendor of the Louvre. Here in this cobbled square you can sit down and have your own instant portrait done in charcoal.

The ancient village of Paris known as Montmartre is more than a place, it's a way of life. And at the heart of its life, among labyrinthine streets where writers and artists and nightclubs and workers flourish, is the Place du Tertre.

In a city with riches, elegance and cultural treasures to offer the visitor, tourists still flock to Montmartre. Perhaps the charm of Montmartre is indeed the piquancy of its contrast with that other Paris.

On one hand is the city of wide boulevards, grand avenues and spacious squares. Above it rises Montmartre, a jumble of steep, winding streets on a hill dominated by the white basilica of the Sacre-Coeur.

The streets which Utrillo loved to paint are probably familiar to you even if you've never set foot in an art gallery, so recognizable and so imitated is his style. In fact, there's almost invariably an example of it being labored over somewhere in an open-air Montmartre studio, any day of the year.

Inspiration of the artist carries through to selling her art with conviction.

Unmistakably Montmartre.

She makes a living selling street scenes and flower paintings.

"All butchers don't wear white aprons and cut meat," remarked our friend, the unlucky expert. "Some wear pin-striped suits and cut me as their partner."

We were sufficiently impressed by his opening remark to let him show us his most recent misfortune.

The unlucky expert sat North and contented himself with a raise of his partner's two no-trump opening to six.

As anyone can see, the small slam is cold but South was out for better things. He won the spade lead in dummy, led the 10 of clubs and let it ride for a successful finesse. Then he remarked, "I'm afraid you didn't bid enough." After this bridge aphorism, he led another club and finessed his Jack. East showed out and, all of a sudden, our loquacious South had problems.

He had used dummy's ace of spades at trick one. That left him with only one more entry in dummy. He could cash his ace of clubs, get over to dummy with that one entry and set up a last club trick, but he would have no way to make it later. His two successful finesses had left him with 11 tricks instead of the 12 he had started with.

It had been all right for South to win the first trick in dummy and finesse the 10 of clubs at trick two. However, it was up to him to play his ace of clubs at trick three to give up the play for seven, but to insure his small slam in the event that East had started with four clubs.

Polka dot midi, photographed in front of the carpet tufting machine (left) is designed by Shannon Rodgers for Jerry Silverman. It is in Qiana surah, is bound in red and has bowed bodice. Posed amidst the symmetrical spinning frames, the Western-influenced outfit (center) features denim wide-legged pants belted with fringe and worn with a clingy knit shirt. Both are by Lynn Stuart for Mr. Pants. Seen before the warp knitting machine, the plaid ensemble (right) by Eleanor Brenner for Brenner Couture has a side-slit skirt and matching shawl trimmed with fringe benefits. All designs were photographed at THE MILL, Burlington's unique exhibition highlighting the fascinating world of textiles.

FASHION IN THE NEWS

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Find today's clothes a mite confusing? Who doesn't. For many the clue to help solve this quandary of what's in and what's out will be found in fabrics chosen for the season just ahead. It's here that a definite fashion direction emerges.

Burlington, largest manufacturer of textiles in the world, weaves and knits many of the clothes that give designers their inspirations. To share their fascinating world of fabrics with the consumer this fall in New York, the company opened a unique exhibition hall, aptly christened THE MILL, where visitors, transported along a moving walkway, are given a bird's-eye view of the steps needed to create the fabrics that have been elected to the top of the popularity poll this spring.

For the sporty set there's denim. And denim is perfect for the jeans and work clothes look that's part of the back-to-nature movement making its impact felt in the fashion world. It looks great when styled into overalls, the latest variation on the jumpsuit theme, or designed with a red, white and blue stripe for the new city shorts that will substitute for last year's miniskirt when the weather turns warm. (And, please, they should be worn only by the young.)

Polka dots are synonymous with springtime and this year is no exception. Fashion traditionalists will be happy to see them bouncing about in wonderful color combinations on a Qiana surah used for delicate, below-the-knee shirtresses, jumpers and front-buttoned, zippered or split-level skirts.

Sharing fashion honors with the dots and denims are the striped and plaided seersuckers, fabrics that about a year ago surfaced strongly on the European scene. They are ideal for the costume looks that abound—flounce-

Glamor: Party Pants-suit

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

No matter what kind of winter parties are on your schedule, a party pants-suit will put you right at the top of the best-dressed list. Take a break now from your Christmas gift-stitching, and make a sensational after-five outfit for yourself, choosing a luxurious, glamorous fabric.

A flattering design is this tunic-suit with flared legs, long sleeves and double-scarf detail at neck and waist. Available exclusively to readers of this newspaper, it was designed by talented young Janet Franz, a student at the Fashion Department of Stephens College in Columbia, Mo. The pattern includes a sleeveless and a dress-length version of the basic tunic. A mandarin collar may be substituted for the scarf effect.

Janet's award-winning design is interpreted in a luxurious new nylon which looks and feels just like the finest silk, but has all the endearing practicality of the modern miracle fibers. It is shown in a modern geometric print of navy blue and bright green.

Since Qiana nylon is a brand-new fabric, here are a few tips to make the sewing go smoothly:

Try to use interlinings, linings, tapes and bindings of nylon or Dacron, so they will not shrink. If you choose cotton findings, preshrink everything before stitching, including your zipper tapes. Use nylon or Dacron thread.

For best results, select a pattern with a minimum number of seams and no topskirted, one-of-a-kind looking peasant dresses in a newsy navy and tangerine stripe or delicate, puffed-sleeved, pastel-colored, prairie-girl styles that reflect a new interest in the stability of the past. They are perfect for the gal who wants to fantasize her way out of the current fashion dilemma.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Luxurious nylon has the look and feel of real silk, with the easy-care properties of the newest miracle fibers. Use it to stitch a dressy pants suit, to wear to all the winter parties.

stitching. Eliminate time-consuming details, such as bound buttonholes and involved pocket construction.

Use the smallest, finest pins you can find to pin the pattern to the fabric, and cut smoothly with good, sharp shears. Since this material tends to shift, be prepared for a bit of basting. Mark construction details clearly with tailor's tacks.

Use a new, sharp No. 11 needle on your sewing machine. Synthetic fabrics call for lighter-than-usual tension. Change your all-purpose throat plate for the plate with the small round hole, and substitute a straight-stitch presser foot for your all-purpose foot. Make a test-stitch swatch, to be sure that your seams will not pucker. Keep a firm grip on the fabric while stitching. If necessary to prevent puckering, sew with paper between the fabric and the throat plate, ripping the paper off after the stitching is completed.

Seam edges should be overcast to discourage raveling. For pressing, use a silk-wool setting with steam; press the seam flat to remove a pucker before pressing it open, and use a press cloth on the face of the fabric to prevent shine.

An outfit of this magnificent fabric may be laundered as freely as any other nylon garment, with the washing machine on a gentle setting. It may be tumble-dried for a short time on a setting for delicate fabrics.

The dressy pants suit is made from Sue Burnett Young Originals Pattern B-150, in sizes 8 to 18. To order, send $1, plus 25 cents for first-class handling, to Stitchin' Time, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Include your name, address and zip code.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

John P. Holland built the first practical submarine capable of submerging. The World Almanac recalls that Holland's submarine was launched March 17, 1898, and submerged off Staten Island, N.Y., for one hour and 40 minutes. The ship was 54 feet long and 10 feet in diameter. It was commissioned by the U.S. Navy in 1900.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

LOVE IS BLIND...CONTINUED

Dear Helen:

What, if anything, can be done to help someone avoid making a bad marriage?

My best friend is crazy in love with a guy who has a wild past, has cheated during their engagement, left her a couple of times, but always comes back saying he's "changed."

He is 30 and has very little to offer. He's anxious to get away from his parents who have quite a hold on him.

She is 21, from a good family, has a good education and job. Still, she's so infatuated she can't see straight.

Are there any hopes for a marriage when the partners lack the same backgrounds, education, and moral values? Not to speak of coming from different financial situations. And will a man ever change if he hasn't changed his promiscuousness during the engagement? -- HELPLESS SPECTATOR

Dear Spectator:
I'd give this marriage about as much chance as a duck has of swimming in detergent.

... And I'd give you as little odds on trying to dissuade your friend. Her kind of love is not only blind, but deaf and dumb! — H.

Dear Helen:

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film industry's classification code is now entering its third year, and it remains as controversial as ever.

It was just two years ago that Producers Association President Jack Valenti introduced the system of classifying films as to their acceptability for children. The system has been attacked by many critics, both inside and outside the industry, but it remains in force, perhaps because no better method has been proposed.

Valenti's technique was to slap one of four ratings on each film reviewed by the professional censors on the Producers Association office in Hollywood. Originally the designations were G—general audiences, M—mature-parental guidance advised, R—children admitted only if with parents and X—no children allowed.

Later the M rating was changed to GP, apparently on the theory that the M was confusing and was scaring too many parents who thought that it meant unsuitable entertainment for children.

How is the rating system working? Nicely, says Valenti. He cites an opinion survey in which 64 per cent of filmgoers over 18 declared the system was "very useful" or "fairly useful."

That's a 6 per cent gain over last year.

But he admits that there is room for improvement: "We must make our ratings more accurate, more informative."

Others are not as satisfied with the ratings as Valenti. Critics contend that more and more racy material is turning up in movies rated GP and R.

The astute A.D. Murphy of Daily Variety commented: "To many trade observers and members, 1970 was the year of the wandering X and R; that is, films seemingly of X-caliber drifted over into R, and R

This is to "Thinker," and thanks for telling him off, Helen! He thinks all young people are rioters and freakouts, and wrings his hands about how tough adults have things.

This world isn't in such a mess we can't get out of it, using sense and knowledge and courage, and working together.

If people like "Thinker" would get off their duffs and stop generalizing, maybe they'd notice the young are already doing a lot to change things for the better. If he watched the election returns, he'd notice how many of us were at campaign headquarters, both Democratic and Republican. We were in there working for our candidates while he might have been off somewhere else howling to his golf partner.

We're fighting pollution, and drug abuse, and war—and a lot of us are fighting IN a war too!

I've been around and have met all kinds of young people, but I haven't met any "savages" yet. If "Thinker" thinks he's got troubles, he oughta try being young today. We not only must worry about the future—and work for a better one—but we have to get past solid rock barriers like "Thinker!" -- JUST A "FREAKOUT"

Dear Helen:
People are always coming up with things to save, such as old tea bag tags, which are worthless, as no one will redeem them.

Well, here is a worthwhile project that is proven. A Saddle River, N.J. church is saving Betty Crocker coupons and for every 600,000, they can get a kidney machine to be used in this area.

If anyone would care to contribute, send coupons to Saddle River Reformed Church, Upper Saddle River, New Jersey. — READER

Dear Readers:
It's true! Your Betty Crocker coupons WILL provide a kidney machine where needed. This has been checked out by the fact finder department in our local paper. — H.

material had apparently drifted over into the GP group the 'P' in GP has come to mean 'permissiveness.'"

Why the drift? It's apparent that most producers seek to avoid the X rating, except for material which obviously borders on or actually is pornography. The R is likewise shunned.

The reason is that producers have generally concluded that, except for sensation-packed films, they will make more money on G or GP movies. Not only because the audience is larger. There is also an immediate drawback to X—and in some instances, R—movies: They cannot be advertised in about 30 newspapers around the country.

MONEY CLIPS

A counterfeit is an imitation fabricated in the semblance of a genuine; an altered coin is genuine, changed in any degree to resemble another—a forgery. While there is a technical difference in the legal interpretation, there is no noticeable difference in the damage to our economy caused by the existence of either and for that reason "altered coins" must be considered a part of this series.

In Chapter IX of "Cowles Complete Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins" under Counterfeit and Unauthorized Coins, an altered coin is described in part as follows:

An Altered Coin

"A genuine coin changed in any degree to resemble a genuine coin of exceptional value—having been produced or caused to exist under unusual circumstances. (Misstruck or low-mintage coins issued by a particular mint during a given year.) It may have the qualifying feature (date numeral, mint mark or any one element in the design) added by applying one lifted from a lesser specimen and 'laid on' by any method of adhesion; engraving or re-engraving; 'chasing' an existing feature to resemble another and building the desired feature through an electrolyte process."

A typical example of an altered coin with a "laid-on" qualifying feature is the 1932 Washington quarter with an S or D mint letter referred to in a recent Money Clips article. The article suggested that a quarter of that date with an S mint mark found by a reader be authenticated to determine whether or not it had been altered.

One type of 1932 S or D Washington quarter forgery is made by "lifting" the D or S mint letter from a less valuable specimen of this particular issue and "laying it on" one produced at the Philadelphia mint, which bears no mint letter.

It is rather easy to do but, in most cases, the results are crude and easily detected with an ordinary magnifying glass. However, many are done with painstaking care and nothing short of a 30-power stereoscope will spot the point of contact between the letter and the surface of the coin. The edge is usually black where a letter or numeral has been soldered on under heat and no amount of cleaning or burnishing will conceal the fact.

Other methods of adhering qualifying features to the surface involve the use of liquid solders or epoxies. This process often leaves a "cave" around the letter or numeral where the edge hangs out over the adhesive material. Usually a lacquer thinner bath or soaking in an ether solution will loosen the letter or numeral but some of these fakes have resisted all of the foregoing processes, necessitating further study by X-ray spectrography.

Reason for Fakes

Lifting a mint letter from one coin and meticulously "laying it on" another seems like an awful lot of trouble just to forge a collector's item and, in some cases, the time and effort involved amount to more than the market value of the coin. But, in the case of the Washington 1932 S or D quarter, the efforts are justified, if such a thing is possible.

There were only 436,800 quarters struck at the Denver mint in 1932 and 408,000 struck in San Francisco. In 1947, the 1932-D was valued at $17.50 and the 1932-S was valued at $10.

In 1949, the Denver piece jumped to $37.50 and the San Francisco coin moved to $22.50. By 1959, Washington quarters with a D mint letter were listed at $70 each and those with an S mint letter had barely moved to $32.50. By 1969, both coins had soared to a retail value of $225 apiece for the 1932-D and $115 for the 1932-S.

If you have a Washington-head 25-cent piece with the date 1932 and the mint letter S or D, please have it examined by an expert.

Q—Where was the birthplace of Saint Patrick?
A—He was born at Bannaven, which may have been in England near the Severn estuary, or in Scotland near the modern city of Dumbarton.

Q—What fish breeds on land and then returns to the sea?
A—Grunions, small sub-tropical fish, breed on land by using high tides to dash them up on beaches, where the eggs are laid and fertilized to await later tides which wash them out to sea.

Bobcats Are Beaten by Pine Bluff

By BILL MOORE

STAR SPORTSWRITER

Last night in the second game of a doubleheader at Jones Field House, the Hope Bobcats were defeated by the Pine Bluff Coleman Bears, 67-59, in a battle of turnovers.

Hope's record now drops to 2-2 for the season and their next game in December 10 against Gurdon, here.

Both teams started out slowly, but began to score after Donny Murray hit a basket for the Bears with 5:43 to go in the first period. Hope's John Dudley put four quick points on the board and after Bill Rowland sank a two pointer, the Bobcats held a 6-2 lead.

However, a fine display of shooting by Jamie Smith for Coleman tied the score at eight all with 2:27 left in the first period.

A late spree by the Bobcats gave Hope a 17-13 lead at the end of the quarter, after Steve Harris had sunk a basket with only nine seconds left.

David Briggs started the second quarter activities with a field goal and after Pine Bluff came back to within two, Dudley drilled one in from the free throw line with 4:55 left in the half. However, the half ended in a 28-26 tie after James Strickland popped in two free throws for the Bears with three seconds left in the half.

Coming out in the third quarter, Hope ripped off eight points in a matter of less than a minute for a 34-29 lead, Pine Bluff rebounded and with 5:27 to go in the third period the Bears took a 37-35 lead.

Now, see saving back and forth with the score, the quarter finally ended in a 47-47 tie after Bill Rowland and Parker Powell each connected for two points.

After Murray put Pine Bluff ahead at the beginning, Hope could never seem to catch up, although at one time they came within two points of the lead.

Top scorers for Hope were Parker Powell with 16 points, Dudley and Briggs with 13 each and Rowland with seven. Pine Bluff's leading scorer was Smith with 24 points.

Earlier, in their first game of the season, the Hope B-Bruins bounced the Pine Bluff Coleman Bears B-team, 50-37, for a good starting 1-0 record.

Hope fell behind 3-0 before Buddy Ingram, Roger Newton, and James Bradley connected for a 8-5 lead with 4:30 left in the first period.

After Ingram hit a technical foul shot with 4:48 left, the B-Bruins never trailed, although Pine Bluff came close a couple of times. The first quarter ended with the B-Bruins holding a 16-12 lead.

Newton hit two quick baskets early in the quarter and after Danny Boyette scored two, Hope held a 25-18 lead. Two layups on stolen balls by Danny Joyce with seven seconds gave Hope a halftime 29-20 lead.

Ripping the net for eight straight points gave the B-Bruins a 37-22 margin early in the third quarter and after traded scores, Newton took a stolen ball in for a layup to up the score to 44-26, with one quarter left.

Using the shooting of Ingram, Joyce, an Glendon Martin, Hope kept a good lead until the end. Some real good rebounding is credited to Newton, Boyette, and Martin, along with all in a fine defensive effort.

Newton led the scoring with 14 points, followed by Joyce popping 13, Ingram netting 11 and Boyette hitting six. Johnny Handley led the Bears' team with 13 points.

Next games will be at Stephens, when the junior boys and girls travel there for two games, the girls beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Texas Favored Over Porks by 7 Points

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Top-ranked Texas and fourth-rated Arkansas collide today for the Southwest Conference championship. A Cotton Bowl bid and a possible national title are at stake in the nationally televised "Big Shootout II."

The defending national champion Longhorns have won 29 consecutive games, including a 15-14 victory over Arkansas last year in similar circumstances in the "Game of the Decade."

Only President Nixon won't be in attendance this year as he was in 1969 when he watched the action at Fayetteville, Ark. A record crowd of 68,000 is expected in Memorial Stadium for the matchup of the nation's two highest scoring teams.

The Longhorns of coach Darrell Royal are averaging 41.1 points per game and the Razorbacks are right behind with 39.5.

Arkansas coach Frank Broyles says tailback Bill Burnett, the leading scorer in collegiate football history, is recovered enough from his shoulder separation to make an appearance.

"The doctor says the shoulder separation is healed and it's up to Bill how much he can play," Broyles says.

All-America fullback Steve Worster, who has been bothered by a bruised hip, is ready for the Longhorns, who lead the nation in rushing with an average of 364.6 yards per contest.

Arkansas is 9-1 for the season — the only loss coming in the season opener against Rose Bowl bound Stanford.

The loser is likely to have to sit home New Year's day because the major bowls are filled except for the Orange Bowl, which is expected to fill its final spot with Louisiana State if the Tigers defeat Ole Miss tonight.

A tie puts Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl New Year's day against Notre Dame because Texas went last year.

Temperatures in the 70s and winds 5-15 miles per hour are expected. Kickoff is 1:50 p.m. CST with Texas a touchdown favorite.

This is the time of year for reports in the paper of hunters being killed or wounded by their fellow hunters.

In those cases, the gun was actually discharged. No one knows how many hunters there were who thought they had spotted game but whose twitching trigger-fingers were stayed at the last moment.

Nothing in hunting equals the churned-up blend of different emotions in a situation like this: Waves of thanks and relief; the shock

Big Parlay Possible for Argentina

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

There's a possible big parlay coming up for sports fans in Argentina who like to risk a few pesos now and then.

Up, a 4-year-old bay colt from the Pampas country, is scheduled to run in the $50,000 Display Handicap at Aqueduct race track on Saturday, Monday night, in New York, Oscar Bonavena of Argentina, tangles with Muhammad Ali in a heralded heavyweight fight.

If the two invaders from Argentina should come through it could mean a nice payoff for the folks who like to bet parlays.

The Display is at two miles and is the final stakes of the New York thoroughbred season which ends Monday. It features the national weekend program.

Elsewhere on Saturday there is the $22,000 Senatorial Stakes at Laurel, the $20,000 Tropicana Handicap at Bay Meadows, the $15,000 Gold Coast Handicap at Tropical Park, and the $12,500 Tenacious Handicap at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans. Features are also listed at Liberty Bell and Lincoln Downs.

Up, a son of Again-Hake, by Birkil, finished third in the Grand Premio Carlos Pellegrini on Nov. 8, his last start, and arrived in the United States early this week. He is seeking to duplicate the feat of Damelo 2nd, another Argentina-bred. Damelo won the 1966 Display in his first start in America.

Hitchcock, winner of the recent Gallant Fox Handicap, is expected to be the high weight at 117 pounds in the Display. Up is slated to carry 116 in a probable small field of six.

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Muhammad Ali is training for a return to Madison Square Garden, his lawyers are preparing for a court battle which could be his last big fight for a while.

It has been nearly 3½ years since Ali, born Cassius Clay, was convicted of refusing induction into the armed services. The long struggle that followed has kept him out of jail so far, but until last October it had kept him out of the boxing ring as well.

Ali continues his return to boxing Monday night in the Garden against Oscar Bonavena.

His legal fight is back before the Supreme Court, which is deciding whether to hear yet another appeal. A negative decision at this point could cut short Ali's ring comeback.

A decision is not expected before January.

The long delay between conviction and a final decision has raised howls of protest from war hawks, veterans groups and others who complain it shouldn't take so long to go to jail.

Lawyers on both sides of the case hotly deny any charges that the system of judicial reckoning has been soft on Ali who gave up his heavyweight boxing crown rather than fight with a gun.

Justice Department officials here merely point to the chronology of litigation when asked why Ali is still free so long after his sentencing.

The full appellate process runs for years for any defendant who can afford to pursue it.

Even after 3½ years, time is critical since promoters already envision a $7 million championship bout between Ali and heavyweight titleholder Joe Frazier early next year.

Ali, unbeaten in a glamorous boxing career, was reigning champ when he stepped into the judicial ring by refusing to take the traditional step forward April 28, 1967, at the Houston Armed Forces Induction Center.

He said he was a conscientious objector to the war and a Black Muslim minister and should have been granted exemption on either ground from 1A draft status.

Indicted May 5, 1967, Ali was convicted the following month by an all-white jury of six men and six women who deliberated only 20 minutes. The trial lasted less than two days and included only five hours of testimony by eight witnesses. Ali did not testify.

"I'm going to impose the maximum sentence," U.S. Dist. Court Judge Joe Ingraham announced on June 20, 1967, and then slapped Ali with a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence.

But Ali has remained free under $5,000 bond while his lawyers threaded the long and complicated paths of appeal, rehearing and appeal again.

One year after his conviction, Ali's case reached the Supreme court for the first time. It was remanded to the district court in Houston after the government admitted it had monitored conversations in which Ali had participated.

The monitoring had been done by FBI agents who had the late Dr. Martin Luther King, civil rights leader, and various Black Muslim officials under electronic surveillance.

In a Houston hearing to determine whether the wiretapping was unlawful and had tainted the conviction, Ingraham ruled that four summaries of monitored conversations "could not have had any bearing on the defendant's conviction ...."

But Ingraham disclosed the contents of only four of five such wiretap logs. The court looked at the fifth but kept its contents secret because Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said in an affidavit that disclosures "would prejudice the national interest."

Ali's lawyers fashioned a new appeal claiming "his right to disclosure of the log of the fifth surveillance cannot be concluded by the government's claim of privilege without, at a minimum, an independent judicial determination that ... disclosure of the log to him would substantially injure national security interests."

However, the biggest issue in Ali's appeal is a challenge to the legal authority of the attorney general to use electronic surveillance in national security cases without prior permission of the courts.

Thus, Ali's case becomes more than the appeal of a celebrated boxer and draft resister. This is the first time the Supreme Court has been asked to determine whether court permission is needed for electronic surveillance, just as a warrant is needed before a home can be searched.

A clear high court answer to this question would be a legal landmark — going far beyond Ali's appeal — to determine numerous other cases hinging on evidence gathered by electronic snooping.

Should the court refuse to hear the appeal, Ali likely would go quickly to jail. The probable legal action would be to seek a reduction of the sentence, but Ali most likely would not remain free during this phase.

If the court grants the hearing but then rules against Ali after oral arguments sometime in the spring, the result would be the same.

However, if the court upholds either of Clay's major arguments, chances are he would go free.

By any course, some kind of determination seems likely in the not-too-distant future. Meanwhile, Ali estimates his extra-fight has cost him $10 million he could have earned boxing.

"Many people say they don't mind getting involved," Ali said after being sentenced for the second time, "but when it comes to losing their wealth or position in life they don't want to."

Ali saw quickly how involved he was. He was stripped of his boxing title. He was forbidden by the state boxing commissions to fight, and the federal courts refused to let him fight outside the country.

Finally, Ali got a license to fight Oct. 26 in Atlanta where he disposed of Jerry Quarry in three rounds. His scheduled bout with Bonavena Monday could be a return to paradise or the end of the road—regardless of what happens in the ring.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—From out of the forest of arms in the corner, a basketball shot high into the air and descended apace into the firm grasp of the basket net.

"Two points for Lou Hudson," informed the public address announcer.

"That's Hudson's best shot," said Atlanta Hawk publicity director Tom McCollister. "He shoots best in a crowd."

Hudson was virtually indistinguishable in the crowd, which is a fitting comment on his basketball career, from high school to the pros.

Almost as hidden is the line in a recent National Basketball Association statistics release which showed Hudson second in league scoring to the anonymous figure of Lew Alcindor.

"I've scored 57 points in a game," said Hudson, "and I had a couple reporters drift by afterward. They expect me to shoot well—when I don't, that's their story."

And recently when he scored 49 in a game at Portland, members of the news media could hardly wait to get their pencils and pads under the nose of Pete Maravich, who scored his career high (up to then) of 32 points.

"It didn't bother me," said Hudson. "If you've never had the acclaim, then you just never miss it. It's never been any other way for me."

There is no reason to stop tears over the lack of press notice for Hudson. Many college professors and waitresses alike, all probably serving humanity in greater proportions than a basketball player, never even break into agate type in a newspaper—unless they are in a local bowling league. The only point here: One suspects that when a player is as sensational as Lou Hudson (second team all-pro last season, for instance) and in a kind of public employment, then he would receive greater attention.

"For one thing," said Hudson, "the Hawks have always been built up as a team image. So none of us, not Walt Hazzard, not Walt Bellamy, not Bill Bridges, not Jim Davis—not even Zelmo Beatty or Joe Caldwell when they were with us—got much publicity. Until Pete came along."

Hudson does little to whoop for attention, either. His hair is not in Afro, his sideburns are not thick and past his earlobes, his mustache is practically natty and he is a well-proportioned (6-5, 220), high-jumping, jump-shooting, soft-spoken man of 26.

Now, it could be that he has nothing to say. He is not a militant black, though he is concerned about race problems—especially because it strikes so close to home. He admits he is still trying to learn about himself, though he is certain he does enjoy basketball and ladies.

But having nothing to say is usually no handicap to headlines, since "flakes" are often as empty-headed as they are flappy-mouthed.

The pattern of appearing in the shadows began for Hudson in high school in Greensboro, N.C. He was all-state and got only seven college scholarship offers. At Minnesota, he made All-American second team his junior year, then broke his right (shooting) wrist in his senior year, but still played with a cast and averaged 20 points a game. He made no All-American teams.

"What I like about not being known," said Hudson, "is that people let you alone. I like the privacy."

Pete Maravich saw it another way. "It's not fair," he said, chewing on a sportscaster's microphone and a sportswriter's pencil.

Yost to Quit Post as UN Delegate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Charles W. Yost is quitting as the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations after this session of the General Assembly, according to a high-ranking source in the delegation. His resignation has been expected since word leaked out three weeks ago that he was being replaced.

The session ends Dec. 15, and Yost will make his announcement shortly thereafter, the source said.

Newspapers in Washington, Boston and New York reported last month that President Nixon planned to replace Yost with Daniel P. Moynihan, a White House adviser, and that Moynihan had accepted the appointment. The White House never confirmed the move, but Moynihan wrote a letter to the President saying he was returning to Harvard University, from which he had gone on a leave of absence for his White House job.

"I shall continue to be at your service Moynihan wrote to Nixon, but he added that for anything that you might want that I might be able to provide," his original commitment to the president was for two years.

Agency Sought to Plan Fight on Cancer

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of scientists and prominent laymen today called for an independent government agency to coordinate the nation's attack on cancer, a disease they say will strike one of every four Americans unless checked.

The agency would coordinate research, assist clinics, disburse grants, and provide for a central information bank. The cost: up to $1 billion annually within five years.

The panel, in a report prepared for the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, said the National Cancer Institute is not equal to the task of bringing cancer to heel.

The institute, a division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is principal coordinator of the government's efforts against cancer. It received $182 million in federal funds in 1969. The American Cancer Society, a nongovernment group, spends $24 million a year for research and some smaller voluntary agencies spend another $5 million.

A coordinated national effort will hasten eventual victory over cancer, which claimed 329,000 lives last year, the committee said. But the experts stopped short of setting a deadline.

The report is the work of a 26-man committee, set up by congressional resolution three years ago.

Panelists included a Nobel prize winner, presidents of the American Cancer Society and the American Public Health Association, and several prominent businessmen and executives.

The committee said the United States in 1969 spent $410 per person on national defense, $19 per person on the space program, and 89 cents per person on cancer research.

It said cancer currently costs this nation $15 billion a year—$3 billion to $5 billion in direct care and treatment and the rest in lost earning power and productivity.

It estimated the proposed national program would cost $400 million in the coming fiscal year about double the present level of federal expenditures for cancer research. The eventual cost would be between $800 million and $1 billion by 1976.

The committee said polls taken in recent years show cancer the No. 1 health concern of the American people with 62 percent of the public hearing it more than any other disease.

It said unless the disease is checked, 50 million of the slightly more than 200 million Americans alive today will develop cancer and 34 million will die from it.

Oil Slick Is Still Threat Off Florida

By F. T. MacFEELY
Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Northeast Florida beach residents looked to the weather today to end a threat that goosy black Navy oil will coat their clean sandy beaches. The state's top marine official cautioned, "We're not out of the woods."

A forecast of southwest to west winds at 10 to 15 miles an hour indicated a push away from the beaches for the oil slick which covered 1,000 square miles of the glassy quiet Atlantic Ocean the past two days.

"It does seem to be dissipating somewhat," said Harmon Shields, director of the Florida Marine Resources Department. "I think we are in better condition, but we are not out of the woods," he said.

The giant slick drifted about seven miles farther to sea Thursday afternoon and was roughly 30 miles from land at its closest point except for one light patch 12 miles off the wealthy residential community of Ponte Vedra Beach.

"It may take more than one day to break up," Shields said, "but I feel we are in a much safer position."

In Washington, Secretary of the Navy John H. Chafee ordered the Navy Thursday to stop immediately the dumping into oceans or rivers any oil, sludge or other waste collected in port.

The Navy admits that it poured two bargeloads of waste liquid containing more than 500,000 gallons of oily sludge into the Atlantic Monday night, 55 miles off shore.

New Russian Envoy to Cuba

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is replacing Alexander A. Soldatov as ambassador to Cuba with Nikita F. Tolubeyev, a former ambassador to Cyprus.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said Thursday Soldatov, previously the Soviet envoy to Britain, was being transferred to other unspecified duties.

Nerve Gas to Move From Okinawa

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department announced today that 13,000 tons of nerve gas stored on Okinawa will be moved shortly to Johnston Island in the mid-Pacific to comply with a Japanese government request.

A spokesman said the first shipment of 150 tons of munitions filled with mustard gas would be shipped from Okinawa "in the near future."

Transfer of the remaining chemical weapons, including both highly toxic GB and VX nerve gas, will be delayed until additional storage facilities can be built on Johnston Island.

The spokesman said that although the new storage sites may not be finished until late 1971 or early 1972, all chemical munitions on Okinawa will be removed by the time the island reverts to Japanese control.

Johnston Island is a U.S. possession located about 700 miles southwest of Hawaii. The only inhabitants are about 900 military and civilian workers who maintain facilities capable of nuclear testing should the nuclear test ban treaty signed by the United States and other world powers be dissolved.

Navy Failed to Get Proper Clearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayport Naval Station personnel dumped oil waste off the Florida coast without getting proper clearance required under Navy regulations issued 31 days earlier.

The new regulations, sent to all major Naval commands Oct. 30, require "preparation and approval of an environmental impact statement prior to the initiation of any action which significantly affects the environment or is potentially controversial."

Navy spokesmen at the Pentagon said Thursday night no such statement of what was to be dumped and how was prepared or approved before Mayport sailors dumped two bargeloads of oil sludge at sea, 55 miles from the mouth of the St. John's River.

The oil formed a 760-square-mile slick in the Atlantic and slowly drifted toward shore, threatening northern Florida beaches.

To head off similar pollution problems in the future, Secretary of the Navy John H. Chafee banned immediately the dumping in open waters of "sludges, industrial wastes, oily wastes, trash or rubbish collected in port." He ordered such waste disposed of by private contractors or burned ashore in an approved manner. Ships still will be allowed to discharge bilge waste while at sea.

"The U.S. government, both domestically and internationally, is committed to take action to protect the oceans against pollution," Chafee declared Thursday night in orders issued to all commands, ships and stations worldwide.

Bandits Get $254,000 in British Holdup

LONDON (AP) — Britain's air and sea ports were on maximum alert and a massive hunt was under way by Scotland Yard today for three masked bandits who stole $254,000 worth of gold and diamonds from an airline truck in the middle of London.

A spokesman for KLM Royal Dutch Airlines said he believed it was the biggest robbery ever staged against his company. He said the gold bullion and diamonds were being shipped by several clients in the London area and were on their way to Heathrow Airport for shipment to several clients in Amsterdam.

"It must have been a brilliantly planned operation, and it worked perfectly," he said. "Our vans always take different routes. We are very hot on security."

The thing that puzzled Scotland Yard most was how the robbers found out that the KLM truck was carrying such a valuable load. The means and times of moving such cargo are normally closely guarded secrets.

Detectives were also handicapped by inadequate descriptions of the bandits. The robbery took place in the middle of the rush hour Friday night and was over too quickly for the details to register with witnesses.

The three robbers, wielding a sawed-off shotgun and a revolver, struck underground—in the Piccadilly Highway underpass beneath Hyde Park Corner, just outside the back wall of Buckingham Palace.

The robbery went off like clockwork at a time when the road was packed with home-ward-bound commuters.

Police said they believed the bandits used two vehicles, a car and a panel truck. The car swerved across the road in front of the KLM truck, blocking its exit from the underpass, and the panel truck staged a phony breakdown on its tail, snarling traffic for several hundred yards.

The robbers jumped out of their vehicles, climbed into the KLM truck, tied and bound the driver and security guard, and drove away with them in the KLM van.

The captured truck was then driven to an abandoned warehouse where the gunmen unloaded its $240,000 worth of gold and $14,400 worth of diamonds into another getaway car and drove off.

Rigs Ordered in to Try to Cut Oil Flow

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — four big drilling rigs were ordered in today to try to cut off the flow from a cluster of flaming oil wells by inserting plugs beneath the Gulf of Mexico's bottom.

The wells, connected to an explosion-wracked control platform 10 miles off shore, were feeding the biggest oil fire in the history of the business.

How many of the 22 working wells were spewing fuel to the flames was uncertain. The Coast Guard estimated seven.

A spokesman for Shell Oil Co., owner of the wells, said the oil would be kept on fire to minimize sea pollution while workmen try to bring the flow under control—a project that may take weeks.

The Coast Guard said a light slick of unburned oil extended from the platform about eight miles to the northwest Thursday, with smaller slicks fanning out in other directions.

In Washington, the Interior Department said it still intends to hold the first sale of offshore oil leases in 18 months on Dec. 15.

Such sales were cut off after a Chevron Oil Co. platform fire in the Gulf last February spilled thousands of barrels of crude into the sea.

Hospital Loan for Hampton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration has approved a loan guarantee to assure the city of Hampton (Calhoun County) of the construction of a $391,000 hospital. Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., made the announcement Thursday, adding that the guarantee applies to a $350,000 loan from a Hampton bank to Hampton Development Corp., which will invest an additional $41,000 in the 74-bed hospital.

NATO Agrees on Plan to Deal With Reds

BRUSSELS (AP) — The foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization agreed today at their annual winter meeting to join the Communist powers in a European security conference only after the Soviet Union joins the West in an agreement easing restrictions on West Berlin.

The 15 foreign ministers stressed the importance of unhindered access to Berlin, 110 miles inside Communist East Germany.

They also want improvements in the situation within the city, divided by the wall the Communists built in 1961, and they want acceptance of the ties between West Berlin and West Germany.

They said as soon as satisfactory Berlin arrangements have been made, they would be ready to start multilateral contacts to see whether it would be possible to hold a conference or a series of conferences on security in Europe.

The Communist governments have been pressing for such a conference, with some support in the West, but many Western leaders are resisting.

After agreeing on the substance of their final statement, the ministers took the unusual step of going into a restricted session. One report was that they were considering whether to meet in Portugal next spring, a site that would probably let NATO in for extra criticism because of Portugal's colonial policy.

In their final statement, the ministers expressed satisfaction with the letter from President Nixon Thursday promising that the United States will maintain its present strength in Europe until the Soviet Union reduces its forces.

The ministers also welcomed the resumption of talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on restriction of strategic nuclear missiles and the treaties made by West Germany with the Soviet Union and Poland.

They called these treaties a contribution to peace in Europe. The seven Warsaw Pact nations, in a communique after their summit conference in East Berlin Wednesday, expressed hope current Big Four negotiations over West Berlin would end in a "mutually acceptable agreement, appropriate to the interests of easing tension in the center of Europe as well as the needs of the populace of West Berlin and the legitimate interests and sovereign rights of the (East) German Democratic Republic."

The statement also said acceptance of East Germany as an equal to West Germany in international relations, in the United Nations and in other international organizations "are vital demands of the times and would be an important contribution to European and international security."

Before the ministers' meeting today, U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers met with Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and David K. E. Bruce, the chief U.S. negotiators at the Paris peace talks.

At a news conference afterward, Rogers said the American raid on the Son Tay prisoner of war camp in North Vietnam would help, not hinder, the Paris talks.

Rogers said he had found wide support among the NATO ministers for President Nixon's last peace offer, but there had been no change of attitude by the North Vietnamese.

Nixon Acts to Combat Inflation

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With a bold attempt to roll back gasoline and oil prices and an ultimatum on construction costs, President Nixon has launched the toughest anti-inflation drive of his administration.

Not only did Nixon announce direct government action Friday night to force down the price of crude oil, but he issued a warning to all industry and labor against betting on future inflation.

Criticizing this year's big wage increases in the construction industry, Nixon offered this ultimatum:

"Unless the industry wants government to intervene in wage negotiations on federal projects to protect the public interest, the moment is here for labor and management to make their own reforms."

In his speech to the National Association of Manufacturers in New York the President took up a new economic strategy long held in disfavor by his economic advisers—using the power of his office directly to push down a specific price increase he considers inflationary.

Nixon was interrupted by applause only once by the business executives. The President noted some businessmen are concerned because their children are saying: "Business is not for me—I don't want to get in the rat race, I want to help other people."

"Nothing has done more to help people in this country and people throughout the world than the private economic system," he said to bring on the only applause of the night.

Whether his administration will go further in "jawboning" business and labor was not disclosed in his speech. But Nixon used the toughest language to date in his anti-inflation drive.

"This is the moment for labor and management to stop freezing into wage settlement and price actions any expectation that inflation will continue in the future at its peak rate of the past," he said.

"Any wage or price decision that makes the flat and irreversible assumption of a high rate of inflation ahead is against the public interest and against the real interest of the working-man."

He added: "This is also the moment, with productivity newly on the rise, for business to take a hard new look at its pricing policies, and to pass along to the consumer its savings in production costs."

Nixon said his bid to roll back the 25-cent-per-barrel increase in oil prices—and the resulting gasoline price hike—is not a move toward government wage and price controls.
